

Southeast Asia Climate and Health Responder Course

Ramon San Pascual, MPH

As the Executive Director of Health Care Without Harm Asia, Mon leads in the transformative work of greening and building climate-resilient healthcare in the 12 countries that comprise Southeast Asia including Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam, Taiwan, Korea, Cambodia, Laos and the Philippines. He is in charge of growing and coordinating core programs of the HCWH: climate and health, sustainability in healthcare, and building the network of green hospitals in the entire region. Mon works across networks including Ministry of Health, public hospitals, private healthcare facilities, faith-based clinics and health care systems in the region.

Before joining HCWH in 2016, Mon served as Executive Director of the Asian Forum of Parliamentarians on Population and Development (2012-2015), Executive Director of the Philippine Legislators' Committee on Population and Development (2005-2012), and until recently, as Head Executive Assistant and Division Head of the Legislative Liaison Division of the Philippine Department of Health (DOH). A Bachelor of Political Economics graduate from the Polytechnic University of the Philippines, Ramon obtained his Masters in Public Health in 2007 from the University of Washington in Seattle, WA. USA. Alongside MPH, he also completed Certificate Program on International Health. In 2003-2004, He finished the Population Leadership Program as a Gates-Packard International Fellow also at the University of Washington.