

Healthy Volunteers Needed

Volunteers needed to support a Myalgic Encephalomyelitis/Chronic Fatigue Syndrome study at the Mailman School of Public Health

Volunteers will complete health questionnaires, provide blood, saliva, and fecal samples, and undergo a supervised exercise tolerance test at the Columbia University Medical Center.

Participation involves a total of three visits spanning three separate days (screening, exercise tolerance testing, follow-up).

As a gesture of appreciation, volunteers will receive gift cards totaling $250 upon completion of their participation in the study.

Transportation will be provided to and from the Columbia University Medical Center.

Seeking applicants between the ages of 40 and 70.
